Personal Spending

Spain has adopted the common currency of the European Union, the Euro (EUR). In Europe, ATMs are the most convenient way to acquire cash. However, debit and credit cards are widely accepted across the country. While every traveller's spending habits may differ slightly, we have estimated the average daily expenses to help with budgeting for your next trip. Here you will find the average cost for a meal or drink and advice for best practice in tipping.

Meals

Lunch at restaurant	US$ 7-10
Dinner at restaurant	US$ 10-15
Paella at a stall	US$ 5-8
Churros	US$ 3-5

Drinks

Bottle of water	US$ 0.7
Coffee	US$ 2-3
Tea	US$ 1-2
Bottle of beer	US$ 2-4

Tipping

Tipping in Spain is considered optional, but is kindly appreciated for good service by waiters, drivers, and other similar services. At bars, cafes or in taxis, simply rounding your bill to the nearest Euro is commonplace. Your Guide and Driver would appreciate tipping as a sign of gratitude for their exceptional service at the end of your tour.

Shopping

Bustling with colour, local produce and atmosphere, the great city markets of Spain are an attraction, in their own right. Many locals can be found doing daily shopping in iconic marketplaces such as La Boqueria in Barcelona or Mercado de San Miguel in Madrid. There is an abundance of high-street fashion stores in the major cities or even flea markets if you are chasing a bargain.

Leatherwork

Leather production has been an integral part of Spain history since medieval times. Today, you can browse and buy anything from high-quality belts, bags, purses, and boots from leather workshops that line the streets and markets.

Flamenco Costumes

Home to the dramatic and passionate musical dance style of Flamenco, Spain is the perfect place to buy your own Flamenco dress, shawl or wooden Castanet instrument. A high-quality traditional Flamenco dress can cost approximately 100-200 USD depending upon design while hand-painted Castanets can be purchased for approximately 5 USD at the markets.

Vintage Abanico Fan

The Abanico Fan is an important piece of Spanish culture and history. While you can find a printed fan at almost every tourist shop in Spain, the flea markets of Barcelona and Madrid are the perfect place to visit if you are looking for a vintage fan that very few others may have! Expect to pay approximately 2 USD for a souvenir fan, or upwards of 10 USD for a vintage design at the flea markets.

Eating & Drinking

Food and drink are two of the most iconic elements of the Spanish culture. Tourists are often lured to Spain, particularly the South, to try the world-famous seafood, tapas, pintxo and endless jugs of fresh sangria. The Spanish are known to eat late in the evening, with a long gap between lunch and dinner. Breakfast is short, sharp and to the point, consisting of a strong coffee and pastry or churro. But nothing is more quintessentially Spanish than going for tapas or pintxo in the afternoon or late evening. This style of eating involves standing at a bar and trying a range of small plates or toothpicks piled with food while enjoying a beer, wine or vermouth. Tapas can be anything from stuffed olive appetizers to gourmet slow-cooked beef cheek served over a sweet potato puree. Tapas is a culinary experience that cannot be missed while visiting Spain. Searching for unique and authentic dishes can often be overwhelming if you are not a local, so here is a few must-try dishes to get you started.

Paella: Like flamenco or football, paella is synonymous with Spain. The dish consists of rice cooked in a shallow, wide pan with saffron to give it that unique yellow colour with either seafood, vegetables, meats, and more traditionally rabbit.

Croquettes: A tapas favourite, croquettes are little balls of fried bechamel filled with goat's cheese, beef, ham, or broccoli.

Churros: Traditionally served at breakfast, Churros are deep-fried, doughy bread sticks dipped in chocolate and sugar.

Jamon Iberico: Wafer thin slices of cured pork that can be eaten on it's own or with bread, tomato or Tortilla de Espanola: A classic Spanish dish, it's simply a potato omelette. Usually served as tapa, this delicious comfort food is served in most bars and cafes in Spain.

Patatas Bravas: Chunks of potato fried and served with sweet and spicy pimentón – a Spanish paprika

Sangria: The perfect partner to Spain's golden hour every Summer afternoon, sangria is well-known alcoholic beverage across Spain with chunks of apple, lemon and orange chilled in a jug of red wine.

Spanish Chorizo: A fermented, cured pork sausage seasoned with spices and served by itself or with cheese and bread.

Pulpo: Commonly known as grilled octopus, this delicious dish is flavoured simply with Spanish paprika and olive oil. It is an extremely popular dish as tapas bars, often served on wooden plates with toothpicks.

One of the greatest pleasures of eating out in Spain is the chance to sample an array of the country's best wines. Over 50% of Europe's vineyards are in Spain. Restaurant wine starts at around 5 to 10 euro per bottle. Beer (cerveza) is nearly always lager in Spain and usually comes in 300ml bottles or botellines. Popular beers worth trying include San Miguel, Cruz Campo, Mahou and Estrella de Galicia.

Internet Access

Internet access is common in hotels, cafes, and restaurants across Spain. Many internet cafes can be found in the cities as well. If your current Mobile SIM provider is from the EU or UK, it may be possible that you can use your data roaming free of charge in Spain. Please consult your mobile provider to find out more. Alternatively, purchasing a Spanish SIM card for the duration of your tour may be a cost-effective option. Your guide will be happy to advise on this.

Culture, Traditions and Religion

Spain has one of the most distinctive cultures in all of Europe. Well known for its lively fiestas, routine for siestas and passion for food and drink – there is much to love about the Spanish way of life. The nation is made up of 17 distinct autonomous communities, each home to unique traditions, customs and cuisines shaped by politics, religion and centuries of mutual interaction.

Roman Catholicism is deeply embedded in Spanish society, and Christian holidays like Easter and Christmas are widely celebrated or acknowledged. Additionally, every different region or city in Spain has its own patron saint. Each city or village celebrate their saint with bonfires, feasts, and parades.

Etiquette and How to Dress

Spaniards are renowned for being welcoming and generous people who are passionate about sharing their culture with visitors. It is important to remain respectful when discussing the politics of Spain as locals may have passionate views towards whichever of the 17 distinct communities they belong to. Drinking in public is commonplace and acceptable across the nation, however public nuisances are not welcome. The Spanish are quite relaxed with the dress code of tourists, with many coastal destinations seeing flocks of visitors spend their days in swimwear and summery attire. However, Travel Talk does recommend packing a set of clothing that covers both your shoulders and knees for visiting religious complexes. Your Tour Leader can advise when such dress will be necessary throughout your trip.
